Canada's International Responsibility

The Canada any responsibility internationally? None a nation of only eight million people with half a continent to develop and with many long domestic problems of its own to solve, cannot take on conditions and affairs in other countries, on its own initiative, and throughout the world? It is the duty of Canada to assist in achieving a solution of world problems and in the development of a larger spirit of brotherhood among all people and nations.

An overwhelming majority of Canadian people have answered these questions in the affirmative in many ways and in subtle ways. From earliest days the Canadian churches have recognized this responsibility. In their foreign mission work, their activities include the establishment of colleges, schools, hospitals and nursing services as well as the preaching of the ideals and precepts of the Church.

The government said "Yes" when they sent the Canadian Contingent to fight for liberty and justice in Spain, Africa, and later when they authorized the Canadian Contingent in the League of Nations to participate in the Great War. Canada's Parliament, as representative of all Canadians, emphatically agreed when it met the need of the approval of the League of Nations to the consent of the League of Nations.

Canadian opinion is well defined on this question, but, as is inevitable in view of our immense geographical area, it is not uniform. There are many difficulties and problems to be solved, not only from the Old World, and our geographical, commercial and social conditions with the United States which has for so long exercised its influence over our country, but also from the fact of participating in world affairs, there are quite a few Canadians who are either opposed to Canada accepting any international responsibilities, or who regard such matters as purely Canadian.

The danger in a country like Canada is not that too much attention may be given to international questions, and our responsibility in regard to them, but that Canada's domestic life is so completely absorbed in the economic, social, and political problems, whether those interests arise from considerations of geography, religion, race or occupation. In their own interests, Canadians must be Canadians before anything else. They must be Canadians first, and then they can be anything else. They must be Canadians first, and then they can be anything else.

Whether one can Canada realize its full destiny and play its part worth it in the larger affairs of the world is a question that is still open. It is the duty of Canada to assist in achieving a solution of world problems and in the development of a larger spirit of brotherhood among all people and nations.

Even assuming it to be desirable, it is not possible to disregard our international responsibilities in connection with the war in the West. If Canada had not sent a soldier to Europe in the first World War, this country would have suffered enormous loss and had Germany been victorious Canada, in common with the rest of the world, would have suffered. Canada cannot approach problems today from the standpoint of a narrow selfish nationalism which thinks it is promoting its own interests best when it is fighting some other nation's war, but rather from the standpoint of a world view which recognizes that to be an entirely self-contained nation is an impossible task.

We must not only assist in the war, but we must also assist in the reconstruction of the world. We must not only assist in the war, but we must also assist in the reconstruction of the world. We must not only assist in the war, but we must also assist in the reconstruction of the world.

If any part of Canada, or any section of the world for that matter, could ignore international responsibilities, it would be the least part of the world. It would be the least part of the world. It would be the least part of the world. It would be the least part of the world.

Valuable Recipes For The Busy Housewife

Orange and Raisin Compote
1½ pounds Sun-Maid seeded raisins
3 cups cold water
2 cups sugar
3 cups currants
3 cups sugar

Prepare oranges, cutting in very thin slices with a sharp knife. Let them soak overnight in the water. In the morning pick over and wash the currants and add them with the raisins and sugar to the oranges. Boil hard for about 2 hours and put in a few drops of lemon juice. Serve with meat.

The sale of China and Fancy goods which took place Saturday was quite satisfactory, but owing to bad roads, the country people were not able to come in. For their benefit, and also to clear entirely the stock which I put on sale, I will continue the sale until Saturday, June 30th, at two o'clock. There is still a good selection of articles as only one third of the stock moved away last Saturday.

Come and help make the sale a success.

Many of our readers will regret to learn of the death of Martin Wilcox, an old-timer here, and who owned what is known as the F. M. Lee farm, west of town. Mr. Wilcox and family left here some 17 years ago. The following is taken from a LeGrange, Oregon, paper of June 15: "Friend and relatives of Martin Wilcox were addressed this morning when he passed on at 6:30 o'clock at the termination of a two weeks' illness. He was 72 years, five months and seven days of age at the time of his demise, and leaves his widow and four children. Mr. Wilcox has been a resident of this city for about 16 years, and made his home in old town."

Prohibition Loses Out In Manitoba When Province Votes Wet

Winnipeg—Early returns gave a majority in the province for the prohibition bill of 31,196. Nearly all rural constituencies were prohibitionist. In the cities, however, the majority was for the wet. The vote was 31,196 for prohibition and 25,732 for the wet. The vote was 31,196 for prohibition and 25,732 for the wet. The vote was 31,196 for prohibition and 25,732 for the wet.

Only six cities in Winnipeg gave dry majorities. The suburbs all went wet. Brandon, the second city in the province, had a wet majority of 9,845. The vote was 31,196 for prohibition and 25,732 for the wet.

Nothing whatever has been received from nine provincial constituencies.

Trotsky Hurls Threat At Great Britain

Boleynski Leader Directs Hate Toward British and Italians

Moscow—An action on Great Britain, hints of a Russo-Persian rapprochement and a plea for "more action in an anti-imperialist character," marked an address by Leon Trotsky, Soviet War Minister, before the all-Russian congress of naval vessels. "If an ultimatum is presented to us," he explained, "referring to the recent British ultimatum, 'not to permit the export of airplanes,' if a coup d'état in Bulgaria, let us build an other detachment of airplanes, and if there is a coup d'état in Russia build more planes."

M. Trotsky said Great Britain and Italy had, according to information at hand, assisted in the coup d'état in Bulgaria, and the British had aided in the nationalist overthrow in Persia. Declaring that Russia's losses in the world war were overwhelming, greater than Britain's, Trotsky added: "It was for this purpose, perhaps, that the British felt strong enough to deliver us this ten-day ultimatum."

House Approves the Sales Tax Amendment

Aim Is To Do Away With Present Varying Scale

Ottawa—The House of Commons adopted the resolution on the sales tax in the committee of ways and means practically without discussion. The bill is to substitute a general sales tax of six per cent. instead of a varying scale, as at present in effect, explained Hon. W. F. Fielding, Minister of Finance. He hoped that the new system would increase revenue and simplify collection.

A bill to amend the special war revenue act, to give effect to the results of the committee's work, was also introduced and given first reading.
